

Daniella Landau

Quick Facts:

- Former Managing Director of Government Affairs at American Airlines and advisor to top public affairs firms.
- Expertise in emerging technologies, infrastructure development, transportation, and smart cities solutions.

Daniella Landau is a recognized strategist with a deep political and business network spanning Washington, major state and local jurisdictions, and key international markets. She specializes in helping companies and non-profits achieve business development, policy, and funding objectives.

Working closely with clients—from Fortune 100 corporations to early and growth-stage companies—Daniella consistently delivers major wins in business development, public policy, funding, and social impact positioning. Her expertise includes emerging technologies, infrastructure development, transportation, and smart cities solutions. Through her extensive relationships in Washington and state capitals, she helps clients navigate shifting policy landscapes, manage government relations, and seize new opportunities.

Before co-founding Penn Avenue Partners, Daniella was Managing Director of Government Affairs for American Airlines. She also held senior advisory roles at top public affairs and policy firms and served as media director for a leading Democratic political consulting firm. Earlier in her career, she worked on President Bill Clinton's official transition team.

A native of Brazil, Daniella has also led non-profit campaigns in Latin America for Child Hope International and the Center for Democracy.